

Privacy Notice for tutors

National Tutoring Programme – Tuition Partners

1 Why are you receiving this privacy notice?

The tutoring provider you work for (known as your Tuition Partner) is taking part in the National Tutoring Programme – Tuition Partners (the TP programme). You are receiving this privacy notice because you have been designated as part of the tutoring team delivering TP programme in schools.

To deliver and evaluate TP programme, we will need some personal data about you (see section 3). This privacy notice describes how we will collect and use this personal data.

This is separate to processing done by your Tuition Partner to manage your employment. The personal data being collected is additional (but sometimes overlapping) to the information required by Tuition Partner for the delivery of their tuition services outside of TP programme. This privacy information is only valid for the length of the TP programme

2 What is the TP programme

The TP programme is a government-funded initiative to support schools to address the impact of COVID-19 schools closures on pupils’ learning. Schools are able to access subsidised high-quality tutoring from an approved list of providers, known as Tuition Partners.

The TP programme is:

- Funded by the Department for Education (DfE)
- Managed and administered by the Education Endowment Foundation (EEF)
- Implemented in schools by a network of 32 approved organisations, known as Tuition Partners
- Evaluated by a consortium led by the National Foundation for Educational Research (NFER) along with Kantar and the University of Westminster (‘the Evaluator’).

3 Why are we collecting personal data?

Your Tuition Partner have been approved to provide catch-up tuition in schools as part of the TP programme. The DfE and EEF have commissioned an evaluation to investigate the programme’s impact on pupil attainment and how this varies by different tutoring models, pupil and school characteristics.

The evaluation will also look into the experiences of schools, tutors and pupils with a view to improve the delivery of similar programmes in the future. Information about you will be used to carry out the evaluation.

As the government’s full catch-up package is implemented, further research to assess the effectiveness of this programme, or analyse the effect of COVID-19 restrictions on pupils’ attainment and other outcomes may be commissioned. To minimise the amount of time you are asked to provide personal data, the DfE and EEF reserve the right to re-use your personal data for research deemed compatible with the purposes outlined in this privacy notice.

4 What personal data about tutors is being collected?

For evaluation purposes, the Tuition Partner you work for will collect, store, and use the following personal data about you and this will be shared with the Evaluator:

5 Who is responsible for deciding how your information is processed for the evaluation?

The Department for Education (DfE), the Education Endowment Foundation (EEF), and the Evaluator are joint data controllers for the evaluation. They decide how and what data will be collected and used.

6 What do we do with the information about you?

The Evaluator will use the information about you for the evaluation and to contact you to complete the surveys as well as to organise interviews with a small sample of tutors.

Data collected via surveys and interviews, including information you give about your views and experiences, will be analysed with those of other tutors participating in the evaluation and used to write a report. No automated decisions will be taken about you when processing your personal data. While information you provide will be specific to you, no individuals will be identifiable in any data tables or quotes reported.

Special data collected about you (see section 3) will be used to explore the factors that influence the relationship between tutors and their tutees and outcomes. We do not believe that processing your special data will cause damage or distress. Processing this data will not result in any decisions being made about you.

7 What is the legal basis for these activities?

To make the use of your data in the evaluation lawful, the consortium members have identified specific grounds, known as a legal basis, for its processing. The legal basis available depends on the type of organisation so we have listed three below.

EEF, the NFER and Kantar have identified the following legal basis for processing personal data:

GDPR Article 6 (1) (f) which states:

Legitimate interests: the processing is necessary for your (or a third party's) legitimate interests unless there is a good reason to protect the individual's personal data which overrides those legitimate interests.

We have carried out a legitimate interest assessment, which demonstrates that the evaluation fulfils one of Evaluator's core business purposes (undertaking research, evaluation and information activities). It has broader societal benefits and will contribute to improving the lives of learners by providing evidence for about the most effective ways of providing catch-up tuition. The evaluation cannot be done without processing personal data but processing does not override the data subject's interests.

The University of Westminster have identified the following legal basis:

GDPR Article 6 (1) (e) which states:

Public task: the processing is necessary for you to perform a task in the public interest or for your official functions, and the task or function has a clear basis in law.

A separate legal basis has is identified for processing special data. The legal basis for processing special data for the evaluation of TP programme is:

GDPR Article 9 (2) (j) which states:

Legitimate interests: processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes in accordance with Article 89(1) based on Union or Member State law which shall be proportionate to the aim pursued, respect the right to data protection and provide for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the fundamental rights and the interests of the data subject

For the special data we are processing about you, we do not believe this will cause you damage or distress. Processing this data will not result in any decisions being made about you.
